STAN'S SOAPBOX

Hi, Heroes.

It had to happen! It's one of the most exciting new projects in years! Here's how it started . . .

Whenever I'm at a ComicCon or any place where there's a gaggle of frantic fans, I'm always asked questions like "What's Todd McFarlane really like?" or "How does Tom DeFalco manage to supervise so many titles?" or "Is it true that Chris Claremont's really a mutant?" etc. It seems that readers can't get enough information about their favorite comicbook people.

Well, since I always aim to please, I discussed this subject with a few other comicbook freaks and we came up with a dynamite idea . . .

Anyone who owns a video cassette player will now have a fantastic opportunity to see and learn about the world's most popular comicbook creators! I'm planning to interview most of the top talents in the biz in a series of collector's-item videos, which you'll be able to get at your favorite comicbook shop or video store!

In fact, by the time you read this, the first two videos may already be on sale! We're calling the series "THE COMICBOOK GREATS." Each video will be an in-depth, full-length interview with one of comicdom's top talents. You'll have a rare opportunity to see exactly how your favorite comicbook greats work while I hit 'em with the questions you yourself might want to ask. And, for once, I'll shut up long enough to let the other guys do most of the talking!

Of course, there's one serious problem! After seeing themselves on these fantastic cassettes, our video stars might give up comics and go into show biz! But we've got an ace in the hole! If Romita heads for Hollywood, we'll teach Schwarzenegger how to draw!

So, till The Punisher buys a Barbie doll —see ya on video!

Excelsior!

Stan Lee

It's May, so those young scallawags up at Marvel Comics thought it would be a hoot to have somebody named May write this month's Bullwhip Barnacles Page. So, purely at random, they selected me, May Parker, beloved aunt of Peter Parker, that well-known photo-journalist. Since making wheatcakes isn't taking up all my time anymore, I accepted the job (although, to be honest, I haven't read a comic book since the Yellow Kid was wearing yellow diapers.)

They told me I could write about whatever struck my fancy, but since it's been some time since I've had my fancy struck, I thought I'd tell you about my trip into the city two months back. I was strolling through Manhattan, looking for that special wool I need to knit some new sweaters, and I saw that nice young Mark Gruenwald, who is Executive Editor of Marvel Comics, and, who, by the way, is one of the most eligible bachelors in the city. Mark was holding a video camera, and was filming something he called the Marvel Talk Video.

The video will be shown at all the major comics conventions this year, and will feature all your favorite Marvel editors talking about their upcoming projects. But here's the peachy, this video will feature the Marvel crew off hours so you'll get a glimpse of their lives. For instance, Nel Yomtov will be performing with his group, the Bluesicians, at a jazz club. Carl Potts will be fishing. Jim Salicrup will be seen at Troma film studios, home of Marvel's newest comic book, the TOXIC AVENGER.

As I continued to walk around the city, I saw a bunch of Marvel employees boarding a bus for a big ski trip. Now, I myself haven't skied in years, though in my day, I was quite a "hum-burger," as they say. I also was quite a dancer —I could do a Lindy like nobody's business, and nobody could touch my fox trot.

Why, with my husband, Ben, God rest his soul, I used to do a Charleston that would leave em gasping for air!

Oh, ahem, I seem to have strayed from the topic. Now, where was I? Oh, yes, the Marvel ski trip. It took place in March. About twenty Marvel persons headed up to the Berkshires in West Massachusetts, where they had a sociable, clean, outdoorsy experience together. It seems when four Marvel staff people —Sarra Mossoff, Rob Tokar, Kevin Kabasic, and Kevin Tang —went to the Berkshires in January, they had such a good time, these rapscallions decided to go back, and bring their friends with them!

Of course, skiing season is far behind us, and we're now entering into warmer weather, so you know what that means. Yes, it's time to start up a new season of bridge tournaments. I understand we're also entering softball season, so you can be sure the Marvel softball team is breaking out the pigskin and preparing for another big year. Young Evan Skolnick, who last year led Marvel to one of their first winning seasons in years, does not know if he's going to manage the team again. I wouldn't blame him if he didn't. The responsibilities of the position look like they've contributed to his premature hair loss, the poor boy . . .!

What's that? Oh. All right. I've been asked to mention some comic book conventions. Now, myself, I've never been to such a thing, but I do attend a couple of bake-offs every year and I imagine they're much the same, except you can't eat comics. I have a prize-winning cherry cobbler, which Anne Watson says is super-scrumptious. Come over sometime, and I'll give you a taste. Anyhow, here's what I'm supposed to tell you about the conventions . . .

The Chicago Comicon is June 28-30. For information, write 1219 West Devon, Chicago, IL 60660 or call (312) 743-4493. Guests will include Chris Claremont, Mark Bagley, Tom DeFalco, and Mark Gruenwald.

The San Diego Comicon is July 4-7. You may write P.O. Box 128458, San Diego, CA 92112-8458, or call (619) 491-2089, if you wish. Guests include Jim Lee, Chris Claremont, Jack Kirby, Fabian Nicieza, and Paul Ryan.

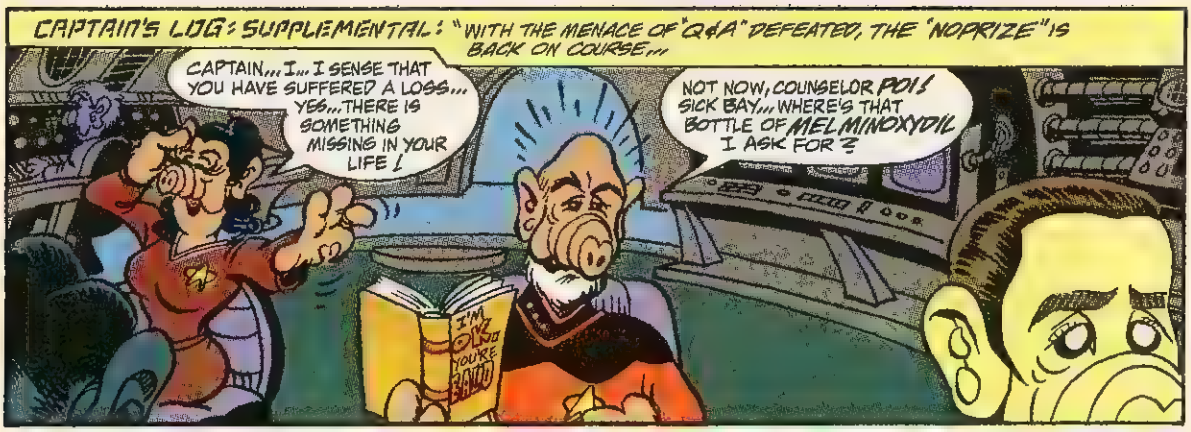
The Atlanta Comics Expo is July 12-14. Write Box 47696, Atlanta, GA 30362, or call (404) 925-2813 for details, if you're of a mind. Guests include Frank Miller, Al Williamson, Mark Bagley, Wayne Vansant, Ted McKeever, Bob Harras, and Terry Kavanagh.

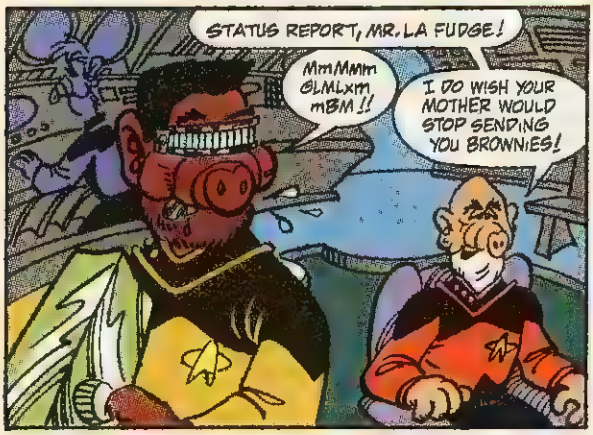
The Dallas Fantasy Fair is July 19-21. Write P.O. Box 820488, Dallas, TX 75382, or call (214) 350-4305 if you want to know more. Guests include Carl Potts, Mike Rockwitz, Ron Frenz, and Rob Tokar.

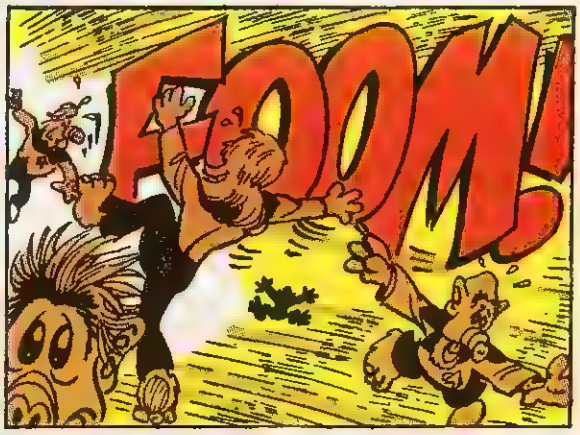
The Atlanta Fantasy Fair is July 26-28. Write 4175 Eliza Ct., Lithonia, GA 30058, or call (404) 985-1230. Guests include Bob Budiansky, Alex Saviuk, Mark Bagley, Renée Witterstaetter, and Marie Javins.

My goodness! That took up space. I guess I can stop soon. I hope you enjoyed my Bullfrog Bugaloos Page. I'm glad I had the chance to write for a Marvel Comic, although I admit I know next to nothing about comic books. Marvel publishes those books about that awful Spider-Man, that much I know.

Till next May, this is May Parker leaving you with a funny saying I heard a bobby-soxer tell his chum, "If I don't see you in the mattress, I'll see you in the spring!"







CAPTAIN!! THE SHIP IS OUT OF CONTROL!!

Hey, kids—Since we print your name, city, and state, please include them on your letters.

Yo ALF,

I think you're funny, silly, nice and cute. Will you marry me? I have a kitten. If we marry, don't eat the cat please. Plus, I love ya.

Keep up the good work.

Liana Smith
Tipp City, OH

Quoth ALF: "About that marriage proposal . . . what kind of menu are you offering? Slimeball, pigeon pie? Sawdust succotash? Snodgrass burgers?"

Dear ALF,

I am a big fan of yours. I have over 20 of your comics. Can I get the ones I don't have? Can I get your autograph and a noseprint?

Buddy Spencer
Countenay, Canada

How 'bout a good ol' alien snorb instead? Seriously, getting copies of ALF comics is easy. Companies that specialize in selling back issues often advertise in regular Marvel Comics. Thanks for writing, Buddy.

Dear ALF,

I have been reading your comics for about five years. I have about 5,000 and I've read each one about 5,000 times. I lost a couple, though, because my brother takes them and hides them from me. Well, just wanted to say hi. "Hi!" "Bye!"

Carly Bedell
Spring Valley, NY

That's 25 million readings, Carly! We're impressed!

Dear ALFster,

Inez Elementary School subscribed to your book, ALF, and it is currently being read by Mrs. Hill's 3rd grade class. They really enjoy your book! Hey, if you don't believe me, take their words for it . . . "Thank you for making them. I really enjoy them."—Brandon N. "I like the books from you."—Travis. "I really appreciate all the comic books you write."—Lourdes Irwin. "I love your cartoons and comics."—Liz.

Actually, most of the school (yes, even the teachers) read your book. The school's official title, as of this school year, is Inez Elementary Science and Technology Magnet School. Obviously, the recent "facelift" has plunged us into. . .well, technical things that can give you a headache! It's a big relief to see the latest issue of ALF come in the mail.

It's a stress-repressor. And we thank you.

Could you send a list of all the people responsible for your book, ALF? Could you tell us how all those people make one comic?

Steven M. Smith
Albuquerque, NM

Thanks for your great letter, Steven. Since so many people have written to ask how comics are made, we're going to answer that! You've probably noticed lots of people help to make one comic book. If you look at the title page of the first story in a comic book, you'll find some of these people listed in the credits.

Most of the people who work on a comic book work in their own homes. Although MARVEL's offices are in New York City, many of the writers and artists live in other states and have never met each other. The connection between all these different creative people is the editor and assistant editor. When each person finishes his or her job, he or she sends the work, as quickly as possible (usually through Federal Express), to the editors at Marvel. Every day, original scripts and art pages crisscross the United States from writer to editor, editor to penciler, and so on.

Michael Gallagher writes ALF. Writing (for STAR Comics) means using not only words, but pictures, too. First Michael writes a one-page 'synopsis' or summary of the story. This means he writes the main ideas and actions in the story. He sends the synopsis to Fabian Nicieza, the editor, who usually approves the story. Then Michael draws the story, writes the dialogue, and sends it to Fabian. Michael not only writes well, but his drawings are very, very funny. After Fabian and Managing Editor Evan Skolnick stop laughing, they send Michael's ALF "script" (it's more like a storyboard) to Dave Manak or Rusty Haller, who, like Michael, live outside New York.

On sheets of thick paper, two times as large as the script pages, Dave and Rusty draw Michael's story in the great styles we're all familiar with. Dave and Rusty are called pencilers because their drawings are all in pencil. And pencilers are allowed to use their artistic judgment and make design and layout changes. Sometimes script pages and art pages look quite different.

Then Dave and Rusty send their art pages to Fabian and Evan, who check for any mistakes. If any changes must be made, artists who work in the MARVEL offices make them. A change may be as small as shading in ALF's eyebrows or as large as drawing a new costume on ALF in every panel. (But mistakes are rare.)

Now, Fabian sends the art pages to Brad Joyce, who letters in all of the dialogue and sound effects (for instance, BOOM) in ink. Then the pages are sent to Fabian and Evan . . . again. (Brad is a good artist, too.)

The art pages go to Marie Severin next. Marie draws in ink right on top of the pencils. Inkers are extremely important artists. A bad inker can ruin a good drawing and a good inker can save a bad drawing by re-drawing it in ink. Fortunately, Marie is excellent.

Marie sends the pages back to—who else—Fabian and Evan! Again, any changes are made by in-house artists (who are usually in training to become MARVEL's future at-home inkers and pencilers).

The art pages then go to proofreader Jack Abel, who reads the story and corrects any spelling or grammatical mistakes. Next, high school or college students who intern at MARVEL photocopy the art pages. The photocopies are then painted with watercolors by George Roussos, the ALF colorist. Each different color has a special code to tell the printer the exact color, and George writes the code right on the painting. ALF, like most comic books, is printed with only three colors—red, blue, and yellow. All the other colors you see are made from mixing these three primary colors.

The colored photocopy goes back to Fabian and Evan (who by now know the story by heart). They check the colored copy and the black-and-white art pages before they give them to the editor-in-chief, Tom DeFalco, or the executive editor, Mark Gruenwald, to check. By this time, so many people have checked the pages so many times, they should be perfect.

Then the perfect pages are sent to the printing press — finally! The entire editorial/creative process takes about four months.

Of course, by the time Dave Manak is penciling one story, Michael Gallagher is already writing the next, which is how we're able to put ALF out every month! It's a process that never ends and we're glad about that!
